

About the Center

Supply chain management, reverse logistics, and sustainability greatly interest both domestic and international businesses because these issues impact their profitability — especially in today's competitive marketplace. The Monica Wooden Center for Supply Chain Management & Sustainability is the first center of its kind in Florida. It spearheads efforts related to the supply chain major, minor, graduate program and a number of community/ industry initiatives.

Supply Chain Business Partner

Talent and skills from university learning flow seamlessly into business partner strategies and objectives.
